DETAILED OFFICE ACTION

Restriction

The election of Group I with traverse in the Response filed Oct. 5, 2007 is acknowledged. Claims 1-9 and 11 are under examination. Claims 10, 12-14, 17, 18, 20-30 and 32-39 are withdrawn as directed to non-elected subject matter.

Applicants state they do not contest the Examiner's holding of patentable distinctness of the various Groups, but contend that searching more than one Group would not be burdensome for the Examiner. As noted in the original Restriction Requirement, separate searches would be required in the US patent classification, and also in the literature. Restriction as required is proper and is made Final.

Rejections Under 35 USC 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for pharmaceutically acceptable salts, tautomers and stereoisomers of the Formula I compounds, does not reasonably provide enablement for pharmaceutically acceptable solvates. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

Art Unit: 1624

The claims, insofar as they embrace solvates, are not enabled. The specification prophesizes solvates, but the numerous examples presented all failed to produce a solvate. The evidence of the specification is thus clear: These compounds do not possess the property of forming solvates; there is no evidence that such compounds even exist. Thus, this is a circumstance where the "specification is evidence of its own inadequacy" (In re Rainer, 153 USPQ 802, 807). These cannot be simply willed into existence. Morton International Inc. v. Cardinal Chemical Co., 28 USPQ2d 1190 states:

The specification purports to teach, with over fifty examples, the preparation of the claimed compounds with the required connectivity. However ... there is no evidence that such compounds exist ... the examples of the '881 patent do not produce the postulated compounds ... [T]here is ... no evidence that such compounds even exist.

The same circumstance appears true here: no evidence shows that solvates of these compounds actually exist; if they did, they would have formed. Applicants must show making solvates, or limit the claims accordingly.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 1 1-9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The recitation of a "derivative" of a compound of Formula I is undefined and has no specific set meaning. The term "derivative" may mean a residue or a different compound derived from the recited compound, and is therefore not possible to know which derivatives are envisaged as derived from the compound.

The term "derivative" can refer to a compound that is formed from a similar compound or a compound that can be imagined to arise from another compound, if one atom is replaced with another atom or group of atoms. "Derivative" is of unknown scope. Cancellation of "derivative" is recommended.

The recitation of "A compound or compounds ... or ... derivatives, solvates, salts, tautomers, stereoisomers thereof or mixtures thereof in all ratios" encompasses unsupported mixtures of the compounds of Formula I and the recited forms and should be singularized.
